Medical Comments: While loading gantry crane onto lowboy trailer "loose tower" moved and caused avulsion of right little finger 1/4" diameter.

ESH Comments: The incident occurred at the MI-65 Service Building. The contract technician and a co-worker were moving the portable, telescoping gantry crane onto a trailer. The contract technician was grasping the vertical support of the unit as he pulled it onto the trailer, while the co-worker was pushing from the other end. The vertical supports are of two-piece construction with an inner and an outer post. The technician had placed his hand at the point where the inner post of the support is inserted into the outer post. By design, there is a small gap between the two posts. As the crane was being rolled onto the trailer, the tip of the technician's little finger on his right hand was pinched between the inner and outer post, causing an avulsion. He was not wearing gloves while performing the task. He reported to the Medical Office and then was referred to an offsite medical facility. He received first aid treatment and returned to work with limitations which did not interfere with the performance of his routine job functions.
